

PennCrest BANK's Newest Guest... residing at Pleasant Valley

Continued!!

Thank you to our Pleasant Valley team members for taking such good care of your guest! Your hospitality is awesome!!

Friday, May 6, 2016:

Page A4 ■ Altoona Mirror

Friday, May 6, 2016

Altoona City Public Works employee Ken Servello was in the right place at the right time during his lunch break Thursday. Seeing a mother duck panicking near a storm drain at Penn Crest Bank on Pleasant Valley Boulevard, Servello submerged himself in the drain to rescue six newly hatched ducklings.

CITY WORKER COMES TO AID OF DUCKLINGS

Mirror photo by Russ O'Reilly

Thursday, May 5, 2016:

News update, straight from PV:

"Well, here's the latest news on the ducks. We had a customer come in and ask about the egg shells outside. We told her there are baby ducks that had hatched yesterday out there. She said that there are no ducks out there now. The customer went outside and came back in and said they were out by the sewer drain in the parking lot. There were 6 babies in the sewer drain. It just so happened that the water authority was over at the restaurant (next door) and came over and got them out of the drain. We then called the Game Commission and they had someone here within 10 minutes. They packed up the mommy duck and her 8 babies and were taking them to Canoe Creek." ~ PV Team Members ~

PennCrest BANK's Newest Guest... residing at Pleasant Valley!

Friday, April 29, 2016

Pleasant Valley is pleased to present their newest guest...
Mama Duck, who they named Penny!

"Papa Duck, Nic, must be at work! Penny is sitting on nine to 10 eggs that should be hatching at any time. We feed them every day and give them fresh water. Their menu has consisted on Honey Nut Cheerios, Triscuits, bread, bologna, and various other crackers!"

~ Pleasant Valley Team Members ~

